Rutgers Children's Choir & Scarlet Singers

Rebekah Sterlacci, artistic director

Founded in 1993, the Rutgers Children's Choir & Scarlet Singers is dedicated to providing young singers with age-appropriate vocal training and the opportunity to perform choral music with peers. The choirs are led by professional conductors and serve as a learning lab for Mason Gross Music Education students. Children's Choir ensembles perform on and off campus, and collaborate with area arts organizations to produce a variety of events, including performances and an annual Children's Choir Festival. The choirs are active from September through May, and perform at the Nicholas Music Center.
